The Art of Sonic Architecture

Original Works by Sherif Dahroug

Artist Profile

Sherif Dahroug is an internationally acclaimed composer, author, and concert artist, celebrated for his profound and original voice in contemporary classical music. Trained as a naval architect before devoting himself entirely to music, his work reflects a rare synthesis of scientific precision and poetic vision.

His compositions have garnered the most prestigious distinctions on the world stage, including the Diamond Prize for Composition (London), the Grand Prize of the New York International Music Competition, and multiple Platinum Absolute First Prizes at the World Master Open and European Classical Music Awards. In 2025, his opus Dichotomie was honoured with the Absolute First Platinum Prize and Composer of the Year at the European Symphony Architect Awards.

Educated at eminent institutions such as the Schola Cantorum, the École Normale de Musique de Paris, and the Royal Academy of Music in London, Dahroug studied under the direct mentorship of disciples of Celibidache, Boulangier, and Messiaen.

His earlier treatise, In Pursuit of a Sonic Architectonics, sets forth his artistic philosophy — a bold manifesto where contradiction, dissonance, and silence become sacred spaces for transformation. In both his writings and his music, Dahroug builds sonic architectures — sanctuaries open to the infinite.
